

I am NOT in favor of allowing cellular phone use aboard airborne aircraft. The noise level would be an extremely annoying hindrance, especially to business travellers such as myself who rely on quiet flights for work and rest. Furthermore, cell phones are inherently distracting to both the user and those around the user -- which could jeopardize sufficient levels of service and safety that aircraft attendants are required to provide.